City & Guilds 2377-10

The Management of In-service Inspection and Testing of Electrical Equipment (PAT Manager)

All electrical appliances in a commercial or public environment need to be PAT tested. Once this is completed it should be marked with a label to say that it has been tested and is safe to use.

This course focuses on the management of PAT testing jobs including record keeping, administration and legislation in PAT testing.

If you are responsible for the management of PAT testing this course will provide you with a vital qualification to enable you to carry out this role.

Who is the Course Designed For?

The 2377-10 City and Guilds PAT testing course is ideal for anyone who has a responsibility to set and control a system in order to maintain portable appliances.

As this course is aimed at managers, the focus is on managing testing jobs and the importance of PAT testing records and results.

What Does the Course Cover?

This course covers theoretical learning elements and covers the practical aspects involved in the inspection and testing of portable appliances.

Once learners have successfully completed this course they should be able to undertake basic PAT testing and keep records to satisfy the Electricity at Work Regulations.

Learners will cover the following topics:

- Law and scope of relevant legislation,
- Types, use and testing of electrical equipment,
- Categories, frequency and practicalities of PAT testing,
- Procedures, documentation and user responsibility,
- Identify training required for PAT testing,
- Appropriate test instruments and how they are used.

Did You Know?

When you book this course, you will get a copy of the IET Code of Practice posted to you free of charge. You will find this necessary on the course.
