Domestic Electrical Installer

Package containing five important electrical training courses

The Domestic Electrical Installer Package combines five separate courses to enable a learner to qualify as a Domestic Electrical Installer and complete electrical work after beginning the package with no experience. Anyone who would love to work in the electrical industry will find a course package quick and hassle free.

Each of the courses in the package system must be studied in order but are not completed in sixteen consecutive days. This allows learners to book the courses at a separate, convenient time for them.

Who is the Course Designed For?

This course package is suitable for those who have not completed any previous electrical qualifications and would like to get into the electrical industry.

It is also an ideal course for anyone who would like to change their career and re-train in the electrical field to start a new career direction.

What Does the Course Cover?

When completing a course package, you are studying for five separate courses. All of these courses have separate content, focus, examinations and qualifications.

Each requires different reading and studying materials but each one follows on from the previous in a particular order that has been designed to build up through the levels by using and enhancing previous learning as you move through the courses.

The courses and qualifications that make up the Domestic Electrical Installer package are as follows:

- Basic Electrics (three days),
- Introduction to Inspection and Testing (two days),
- City & Guilds 17th Edition 2382-12 (3.5 days),
- City & Guilds Building Regulations 2393-10 (one day),
- Logic Part P for Domestic Installers (five days).

Learners start with the Basic Electrics course and move on to study the following courses in the specified order.

City & Guilds

Logic // City & Guilds Accredited Centre

Logic and City & Guilds are two of the foremost awarding bodies in the UK. Both are dedicated to quality training.
