

IOSH Managing Safely Refresher

This useful course is great for refreshing what you've learned in previous health and safety management courses.

It's good practice after taking the IOSH Managing Safely course to regularly take this refresher course to remind you of the course content, as well as learn new regulations and techniques.

The IOSH Managing Safely Refresher course should be taken within three years of the original Managing Safely course.

Who is the Course Suitable For?

This course is open to managers and supervisors who have taken the IOSH Managing Safely course within the last three years.

What's Covered in the Course?

Made for managers who have previously taken IOSH's Managing Safely course, the IOSH Managing Safely Refresher ensures you're up to date with health and safety legislation and proves your commitment to becoming a better manager.

Although it focuses on similar content as the original course, the refresher course places a greater emphasis on monitoring, auditing and reviewing through a combination of two practical case studies.

During this course, you'll reflect back on your original course and what you want to gain from this one, take part in interactive quizzes and group discussion to go over the original course content, build upon what you already know and take part in a practical audit to put management safely into practice.
