

IOSH Managing Safely

No matter where you're managing, you need to have a strong understanding of health and safety and your responsibilities.

IOSH's Managing Safely course is an ideal route for new managers and supervisors responsible for the health and well being of employees within a working environment.

Taught by our professional tutors, Managing Safely will help you to grow as a manager and fully understand the importance of health and safety in the workplace.

Who is the Course Suitable For?

Managers and supervisors, both newly qualified and with experience, will find this course relevant to their work. It's highly recommend you take this course to grow further as a manager and ensure a health and safety conscious working environment for your staff.

What's Covered in the Course?

The IOSH Managing Safely course will allow you to do just that – manage your employees safely within your working environment and ensure all health and safety regulations are followed.

Unlike other courses, this training package includes detailed case studies, crystal-clear examples, recognisable scenarios and is delivered in an interesting, interactive way. It's not just reading off slides – IOSH's Managing Safely programme is designed to ensure that health and safety is interesting and you can fully understand its importance in management.

Topics covered during this course include:

- Assessing risks
- Controlling risks
- Understanding responsibilities
- Investigating incidents
- Measuring performance
